

Relations as graphs

For relation  $R$  on a set  $A$ , we can represent this relation as a graph: a collection of nodes (vertices) and edges (arrows). The nodes of the graph are the elements of  $A$  and there is an edge from  $a$  to  $b$  exactly when  $(a, b) \in R$ .